Be the Designer of Your Life

RCCA Anson Hii Yu Leong
Former Flight Attendant

RCCA Anson had an enviable job as a flight attendant with a popular low-cost airline and was stationed in Singapore. Two years later, he decided to land on BE, a destination that was never on his career map.

THE “GLAMOROUS” PAST

Anson said many people think that the flight attendant job is an ‘atas’ job. “But it isn’t that glamorous, not with the irregular working hours and low basic pay (as low as SG$1,200).” To earn more, they have to take on longer flight hours. But ultimately, it’s the supervisor and airline who’ll decide the flight hours (income). “Furthermore, flying so often has higher risks. Every time I flew, I’d pray for a safe trip,” Anson said.

Anson revealed that his airline had a rule of conducting “grooming checks” on flight attendants before they could board the plane and report for duty. Once, he was removed from duty because of his serious acne problem. “I knew I had to clear my acne quickly or my income would be greatly affected.” Thankfully, he found a supplement that helped him.

DESTINATION CHANGE – BE

Aulora Pants are what attract many to the BE career. For Anson, it was Maqnifiq collagen drink. “After consuming Maqnifiq, my skin condition improved dramatically. People were impressed and asked me for the secret and soon, I was selling Maqnifiq like hot cakes.”

Within 2 years from joining BE, Anson rose to RCCA level. A millennial, Anson admits he has flaws and is grateful to BE for changing him. “I was very ‘kiasu’ and self-centered. I cared about how I looked and how people perceived me. I used to complain a lot and nitpick on small matters. I've since learned to be appreciative. I've learned to think about others and the importance of helping others. I cherish family time and I've learned to look before I leap."

Although Anson didn't have any MLM experience, he found the BE system easy and feasible, "provided you have the right mindset. Some people want to know about the challenges in this business and how to overcome them. Basically, you just need to have the right mindset and swallow your pride. Ask if you don't know. The more you ask, the more you'll know," he urged.

DESIGN YOUR LIFE

"When it comes to challenges, don't complicate them. Oftentimes, the answer to the problems lies in our attitude and mind, and a simple action is all we need. Imagine you are drinking from a cup with a crack. The easiest way to avoid hurting yourself is to drink from the side without the crack, right?"

"There are many hardworking people, but the point is to put your efforts at the right platform. Otherwise, no matter how hard you work, nothing changes. I am very fortunate to have met BE. Here, I have become the designer of my life, rebuilding my dreams, my mindset and life quality. You too can become the designer of your life!"
